Doing all, though not by chance,
All are welcome, rich and poor.

All are free, the constitution

A Description of the Mascaret at Caudebec, France, the Ancient Home of the Cudaback Family.

I saw an engraving in a book of astronomy, called "The Mascaret at Caudebec." It was explaining the causes of tides. It was a pretty view of the town and the rolling waves chasing each other up the River Seine. I will quote a little as it may be of interest to the Caudebec descendents. "A low murmur announces the approach of the Mascaret when it is still at a distance of several miles; directly the ships and boats hasten to push off into the river, seeking the deep spots which the experience of the bargemen indicate as the safest. The vast sheet of water advances rapidly. The enormous wave which marches at the head of the tide swells, rises, stands up; it bursts and falls with a crash. It is a cascade which moves, runs and remounts the river with the speed of a galloping horse. In a short time this great tumult calms down, and the river resumes its peaceful aspect." It is called la barre or mascaret in French and in English, the bar.

Ancient Cudaback Descendants.

James Cudaback of Sussex Co. N. J. The second James, his father, died when he was a child. He commenced life a poor man and became wealthy. He not only became the owner of 2,000 acres of land in N. J. but a portion of what is known as the Holland Purchase, in Niagara Co. N. Y. The original owners of the tract of land owned by James Cudaback were Wilhelm Willink, Peter Jan Ceghen, Hendrick Vollenhoven, Rutger Jan Schimmelpenninck, Wilhelm Willink the younger son of Jan, Jan Jacob van Staaphorst, Cornelius Vollenhoven and Hendrick Keyse, all of the city of Amsterdam, Holland. This tract of land (32,000 A.) is now under a high state of cultivation. It lies on the south shore of Lake Ontario, and a portion of it still remains in the Cudaback family. These Holland names were copied from the original deed of transfer, made out in 1804. The sum paid by John Siebolt Cudaback, Senior, to his father, James Cudaback was $50,000. This James Cudaback was the grandson of Jacob Cudaback, the Dutchman refugee, who settled at Bellingham, N. H. Truly wish I was able to pay his monument but I am not.

History of the Cudaback Family in the United States:
by Mrs. Martha M. Griswold Wife of one of the Descenants.

The ancestor of the Cudaback race in America was Jacques (Jacob) Candebee original spelling: was born about the year 1666, in Candebee, a Town near the mouth of the River Seine, in Normandy, the Northwest part of France. This town was at one time a large commercial and manufacturing center, especially of gloves and hats. The black hat of Candebee was first seen on the head of Huguenots, and was worn throughout France. The city is now a wintering-place and summer resort with modern improved hotels. For a more extended notice of this town I refer the reader to the history of Deerpark and other publications sent to me by Dr. William S. Cuddeback of Port Jervis, Orange Co. N.Y.

The family were zealous protestants and suffered persecution for their faith. Jacob Candebee and Pierre (Peter) Gumar, in company with other Huguenots, fled to Holland, thence after a time to England, where Candebee expected to meet two sisters who were to have left France soon after the brother. It is supposed that Peter Gumar was betrothed to one of these sisters. As the search was in vain they are supposed to have suffered martyrdom. The two young men then sailed for America, landing in Maryland without either friends or money.

They soon after went to New York where Candebee obtained employment from Benjamin Provost, a merchant residing alternately at Kingston and New York City, engaged in trading and dealing in furs &c. At Kingston Candebee and Gumar were welcomed by others who were fugitives like themselves.

About 1690 associated with these and the sons of Roelof Swartwout they explored and settled in Minisink or Meckheckameck Valley in what is now known as Orange Co. New York. Many of the descendants of these three persons Candebee, Gumar and Swartwout have intermarried and remained in that part of the state of N. Y. and in the Northwest-part of New Jersey.

In 1693 Jacob Candebee returned to N. Y. and on Oct. 21st of that year was married to Margaret Provost daughter of his old employer, in the Dutch reformed church of that city. There is a tradition in the family that he Provost were also French but I have been unable to verify it. I am told that a nobleman, ancestor of the Coudrebackes in some way, was beheaded and that some of his children fled to America. I have been unable to learn whether they belonged to the Provost family or to obtain names, dates &c, although I do not doubt the truth of the story.

Ten children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Candebee, namely: Benjamin, who never married, he lived to be about 80 years of age; William who married an Eltin

Abraham, the son of William was Captain of a company of militia, both before and during the Revolutionary War. At that time the people were living in forts as a protection against the Indians. In 1779 the settlement was raided by Indians and Tories and 18 families suffered in a greater or less degree. A few prisoners were taken by the Indians and several of the settlers were killed. There is a tradition that a young girl, an ancestor of the present Cudabacks was taken prisoner and kept as a captive for two years and six months but at this late day it is impossible to obtain the name.

The branch of the Cudaback family which I am tracing are descended from James Caudabec who married Keyltje Decker, daughter of Christopher Decker, of Shipikunk, in the Northwest part of New Jersey, where James became a resident. He resided upon land in Sussex Co. received from his father. He died at about 80 years of age, leaving a wife and only son, also called James. I have received the impression that there was also a daughter, but of this I am not sure.

This son, the second James Caudabec, married side of Shawangunk mountain in Northwest N. J. He, a poor man, by persevering industry, became the owner of 400 acres of land. He had three sons, John, James and Richard, and three daughters Elenor, Mary and a daughter whose name I have been unable to learn. Elenor married a Shelley, Mary married an Adams and the third daughter married a Wilson. The Shelleys at the present time are a very numerous and influential family in Northern New Jersey. These daughters all remained in New Jersey. James and Richard Cadaback each married a Cox. John married a Caldwell. These three brothers all moved to Niagara Co. N. J. James and Richard located near Youngstown and John near Union, some distance apart, so that the descendants do not know much about each other.

John (my husband's grandfather) moved to Niagara Co. in 1818. His wife's name was Roxana Caldwell. I do not know if the marriage was in Niagara Co. N. J. or in Sussex Co. N. J. Late in life, John Cadaback was again married. I have been unable to learn the wife's name. There were no children by the latter marriage. She outlived him a number of years and made her home with her step-son Siebolt.

The first wife's people, the Caldwell's were presumably natives of Conn. I am told that the Caldwell family were related in some way to Jefferson Davis, President of the so called Confederacy, and that they were all members of the C. N. & S. I mention to address Mrs. Davis on the subject at her home in New York City. She replied that her husband was never nearer N. Y. than Bardstown, Kentucky, until he left West Point, N. Y., that his family came from the Eastern shore of Maryland and more remotely from Wales, and that Mrs. Davis had^m blood except Southern blood. However, as the relatives both in Western N. Y. and in Southern Michigan testify to the relationship, but are unable to explain in what way I cannot make it any plainer. The son of John Cudaback, J. Siebolt-Cudaback visited Mr. Davis in Canada, (not far from Niagara Co. N. Y.) soon after the Rebellion and was very cordially received.

John Cudaback, the ancestor of those known to the writer, was born in Sussex Co. N. J. in 1777, and died at Wilson, Niagara Co. N. Y. in 1831. There were five children by the first marriage. Four of these children married and left descendants. Sarah died at the age of 14. The others were Samuel, Sylvia, Siebolt and Lydia. Samuel and Siebolt lived and died in Niagara Co. N. Y. and the majority of their descendants are living there at the present time, 1899. The two sisters, Sylvia and Lydia married in Niagara Co. N. Y. and most of their children were born there. They, with their families, emigrated to Lenox Co. Michigan at an early day where many of their descendants still reside. Mrs. Sylvia Cudaback Bogart and husband were buried in Adrian Township, Lenawee Co. Mich. Mrs. Lydia Cudaback Griswold, (my husband's mother) husband and son William who died at about the age of six years were laid to rest in East Rome Cemetery, of the same County. Four of Lydia's sons were Michigan Soldiers in the Civil War. The son George lost his right arm at the battle of Winchester.

More representatives of the Cudaback family are probably found in N. Y. than in any other state, though they are found as far West as California. A few have also located in the South, and all, so far as known occupy honorable positions in life, and we are indebted to them for many improvements and manufacturing establishments in different parts of the country.

It will be observed that the name Cudaback has changed somewhat in spelling by the different branches of the family, since the first one landed in America.

My husband, George B. Griswold, made this quotation from the tombstone of his maternal grandfather, John S. Cudaback, who was the son of the second James Candebeec, in September, 1897 at Olcott, Niagara Co. N. Y. "John Cudaback died Dec. 21, 1831 aged 54. Roxana Caldwell, his wife, died Aug 16, 1823 aged 39." I will now speak of the descendants of each of their four children in their proper order.

End of Sibolt-Cudaback's Family.

Lydia Cudaback, youngest child of John C. and Roxane C. Cudaback, was born in Sussex Co. N. Y. ^{July} 4th, 1814. She was married in Niagara Co. N. Y. when about 16 years of age, to Socrates Griswold who was about 21 years old. Socrates Griswold was born in Rutland Vermont, 1811, went to Niagara Co. N. Y. when quite young and was clerking in a store of general merchandise at Cheektowick N. Y. at the time of the marriage.

The record of Lydia A. Cudaback's family has been kept since some time in 1600. One book entitled "A History of Deepark in Orange Co. N. Y." by Peter Sumner and published in 1890 gives the history of the first three generations of the family. Dr. William Cudaback, who has kindly assisted me in the preparation of this work expects to publish a more recent history.

Twelve children were born to Socrates and Lydia A. Griswold. Three died in infancy. William died in Genoa Co. Michigan at about the age of ^{four} ~~seven~~. Charles, a young man died in California it is supposed. Nothing definite is known of Archibald since the Civil War. The other all married and have children and some of them grandchildren. Four of the sons, Archibald, Eben, Cudaback and George were soldiers in the Civil War.

All of the children of Lydia Cudaback Griswold and Socrates Griswold were born in Niagara Co. N. Y.

except the youngest child Charles who was born in Senawee Co. Michigan. This history is prepared by the wife of George B. Griswold who was the sixth child.

Mother Griswold owned a farm on the South shore of Lake Ontario which she inherited from her father John S. Cudaback. Her two brothers Samuel and Sibolt and her sister Sylvia also inherited the same amount. This farm was sold when the family moved to Michigan.

A portion of the original estate is now owned by W^m. Cudaback of Olcott, N. Y. Father Griswold moved his family to Senawee Co. Michigan Sept. 1849, and located not far from the sister Mrs. Sylvia Cudaback Bogart. The family came by boat to ~~Monroe~~ ^{Monroe} ~~Michigan~~, making the rest of the journey ^{on the old Cape} ~~by rail~~ ^{road}.

This vicinity was the home of the family during the remaining years of both father and mother Griswold. Here my husband, Geo. B. Griswold, grew to manhood, with his brothers and sisters, and from this town (Adrian) he and his two brothers enlisted. Archibald enlisted in Iowa.

Mother Griswold's death was caused by a tumor on the neck from which she suffered three years. Her death occurred November 28, 1861, and her remains lie in the East-Rome cemetery, Senawee Co. Mich. by the side of her husband and son William. She was a devoted Christian woman, much beloved by the circle of relatives. She was a member of the Baptist Church.

Archibald Griswold,

They were married Sept. 20, 1868, Salem, Oneida Co. Minn. When young he enlisted in Company B, 18th Michigan Infantry. He is a pensioner for ill health contracted in the service. After the war was over and spending some time at the old home in Michigan he went to Minnesota where he was married. He and his wife settled near Canton, South Dakota, where their three children were born.

Here the family endured the hardships of a new country, and for a time lived in a fort as a protection from the Indians. The frame house which he built many years after was made from the trees which he had planted.

His wife was six years of age when the first train of cars came into the village of Allegheny on the N. Y. and Erie Railroad. When small she moved with her people to Minn.

Eber Griswold's present residence is Cullman, Cullman Co. Alabama. (1899) The removal was made in 1892.

Elsie C. Griswold

Mrs. Elsie C. Griswold, a prominent worker in patriotic circles and a woman beloved by all who knew her, passed away at her home, 112 North Tenth street, early Monday morning, after an illness extending over several weeks. She was taken ill when in attendance at the G. A. R. department convention at San Jose in May, and about two weeks before her death her illness became serious. Funeral services in charge of the Eastern Star, were held at the Odd Fellows Hall, Wednesday afternoon, many from outside towns and hundreds from this vicinity attending to pay their last sad respects. A glowing tribute to the life of the deceased was given by Rev. F. T. Barkman of the Baptist church who delivered the funeral address. Interment was given in the Soldiers Home cemetery in the plot set aside for veterans and their wives, where the deceased had asked to be laid to rest. The beautiful ceremonies of Appomattox Circle were given at the grave.

Elsie C. Hill was born August 6, 1841, at Sherburn, N. Y. In 1865 she was married to Joseph Sampson, the two coming west to live. They took up their residence in Chicago, then in Denver and later in Bakersfield. Three sons were born to this union, but did not reach manhood, being fatally stricken with diphtheria and passing away, the deaths of all occurring within a period of two days. Later Mrs. Sampson went to Oakland to live and it was here she met Mr. C. Griswold, whom she afterward wed. The two were married in Los Angeles in 1906 and have since resided in Sawtelle.

Mrs. Griswold was a Christian woman and her many good works will live long after her. She was a member of the Congregationalist church at Oakland and during her residence here was an earnest worker in the Baptist church. A member of the Appomattox Circle, she was distinguished for her work in patriotic causes. For five years she was the faithful custodian of the Ladies of the G. A. R. cottages on Wilshire boulevard, and when the form of the management of these was recently changed she was elected chairman of the board of trustees. She was also an active member of the Eastern Star and the Women's Club.

With a true and tender heart she never turned a deaf ear to a call for assistance and the needy and unfortunate constantly received the help of her hands. She lived the full life and gave freely and cheerfully of all she had.

The deceased leaves a husband, C. Griswold, a brother, William Hill, in Chicago, a sister, Mrs. L. Carpenter, in Sherburn, N. Y., two nieces, in Chicago and a nephew in Santa Paula.

Jesse was always of a cheerful disposition, hopeful and kind. He spent the last-months of his life at his father's house in Los Angeles, Cal. The neighbors and all the little children learned to love him, he was such a patient-sufferer. He said he had no fear of death, and that all was well. We feel that his life has not been in vain. His example was good and his life pure, and the memory of him is beautiful to those who knew him best. We laid the poor wasted body away in Rosedale, but as the shining ones said long ago, "He is not there, he is risen".

 one thousand dollars, he would start a certain time.
 This is the last word of any kind ever received from him. It is supposed that he was murdered for his money. He was a ind-hearted, hard

CUSTER'S BOYS.

REMINDERS OF GETTYSBURG
AND SHERIDAN'S RAID.

Reunion of the Most Famous Civil War Brigade.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 20.—The reunion of the famous old Custer brigade here this week has been a red letter day in this city. Gov. Warner addressed the assembled veterans yesterday afternoon.

Over 200 survivors of the old brigade, many bringing their wives, were here. Preliminary to the meeting yesterday afternoon of the four regiments, comprising the brigade, a business meeting was held and president and secretaries elected as follows: Fifth—J. Allen Bigelow, Birmingham; B. F. Johnston, Almont. Sixth—James H. Kidd, Ionia; John Dennis, Hastings. Seventh—Glover Gave, Saginaw; J. Q. A. Sessions, Ann Arbor.

The brigade was composed of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Michigan cavalry regiments, being mustered together under one command about June 25, 1863, while on the march to intercept Gen. Lee on his invasion of Pennsylvania and the north.

They were in the advance, the Fifth Michigan being among the very first troops to enter Gettysburg on June 30. The entire command was fully engaged during the three days' fighting, taking a most decided and important part in the final struggle, the charge of the First Michigan in repulsing the advance of Gen. Jeb. E. B. Stuart being a matter of history.

The brigade participated in 57 historic battles and as many more severe skirmishes, among the desperately fought battles being Gettysburg, Falling Waters, Brandy Station, Winchester, Kilpatrick's raid to Richmond, Yellow Tavern, Cold Harbor, Trevilian Station, and at Appomattox, they were at the very front, and so near to the enemy that Gen. Lee's flag of truce was received by an officer of the brigade and delivered to Gen. Custer. Their record in Sheridan's raid through the Shenandoah valley in 1864 is a proud one.

During the Indian Dodock war in 1874 Gen. Phil Sheridan, in command of the department of the west, was asked how long that war would last. His answer was: "I don't know, but if the government would give the old Michigan brigade of cavalry, as I had them in 1864 and 1865, I would take a contract to clean out all the Modocks in the west in 60 days."

During their term of service they lost by death from all causes 1,575 officers and men, 313 dying in southern prisons.

Cudaback Penn.

The Cudabacks came ⁱⁿ ancient-race,
 From the soil of France to a better place;
 From a foreign land to a home o'er the sea
 Where none from oppression need ever flee.

Jacob came first who fled with his friend,
 Peter Gumar; their love and labor did blend
 Till each made a home in the Empire State,
 Toiling along both early and late.

The County was Orange, the Town Deepfords,
 Where they learned from the natives the use of birchbark.
 They hunted, they labored, they grubbed with the hoe,
 Till for their toiling they'd something to show.

Having left forever the land of their birth;
 They multiplied always, replenished the earth;
 Till the Cudaback name spread over the state
 And settled in Jersey at a galloping rate.

In Jersey they lived ^{from} father to son,
 Till each generation its allotment had run;
 Among them a John who was one of the best,
 Left the old home and went ^{farther} West:

- 6 To the west of New York - & near the Great Lakes,
He took up his land and drove down his stakes;
Roxana, his wife, always stood by his side
Toiling and working till both of them died.
- 7 Five children were born we've always been told
Each link in the family one of pure gold;
Samuel and Seibolt and Sylvia too,
Were some of the children as maybe you know.
- 8 Lydia and Sarah, the youngest, we know,
Grew up together as children will grow;
Sarah, a girl of fourteen was taken away,
The others staid longer till their hair had turned gray.
- 9 Samuel the eldest, and Betsey, his wife,
Had a family of seven, the joy of their life;
Then the wife of his youth was taken away,
But they've now met again just over the way.
- 10 Of all of these children that filled the home nest,
The verdict now is they've all done their best;
Mary and Grant and Sylvia and Roxie,
And Samuel, Cornelia, and another, Davida.

FROZEN TO DEATH

This happened in St. Louis
FORMER ADRIAN MAN CAUGHT IN MONTANA STORM.

Remains Will be Brought to Lenawee
for Interment in Adrian Township.

Joseph L. Graves who until the death of his grandmother Mrs. Frank Graves, eight years ago resided here with her at the corner of Chestnut and North Main streets, was frozen to death Tuesday at Chester, Mont. where he had been engaged in herding sheep for the past three months.

No further particulars are at hand. The news came this morning to Delis Whitenack of Tecumseh, the young man being a nephew of Mrs. Whitenack, and Mr. Whitenack is making arrangements for the remains to be brought east and interred in the Doherty cemetery.

Deceased was an orphan, and after the death of his grandmother resided with his aunt Mrs. Elias Conselvee at Manitou Beach. He left the lake without telling of his plans, No. 21, 1907, and went west, and it has been a matter of only three months since the relatives knew his whereabouts. He had a brother Charles Gray, who is a railway fireman in South Dakota, and also leaves a sister Della, who lives at Grayble, Ind. He was but nineteen years of age.

- 11 Grant is a farmer, his children are two,
 They went and got married as children will do;
 Mary has seven, four girls and three boys,
 Their home is made happy with marital joys.
- 12 Cousin Sam's flock is two girls and two boys,
 They filled the home nicely with plenty of noise;
 Cornelia has gone to her home in the skies,
 Three boys and one girl she surely did prize.
- 13 Cousin Roxie too, is through with all care,
 She rests from her labor in a home "over there";
 She and her husband enjoyed their good home,
 Their labors are ended, their duty is done.
- 14 Sylvia had two little girls, but little they're not any more,
 And by their dear parents they're held in great store.
 Savica has children and lives in the West;
 California, the State, she thinks it the best.
- 15 As the years stretched out into later life,
 They tell me Adelia became Uncle Sam's wife,
 Both of them now are through with life's care,
 Each other's hard burdens they always did share. . . .

- 16 Heitolt, the next son in the line,
 Brought home a young wife who made the house shine;
 Five children to love came into their home,
 Sophia, Harvey, Asher, William and John.
- 17 A cloud of great sorrow overspread the home nest;
 When Abagail, the mother, was laid to her rest;
 She rests from her labor, awaiting the time
 When her loved ones will meet her in the ^{chir} heaven.
- 18 Another wit. Jane, as I have been told,
 Was beloved by all in the family fold;
 Two little daughters afterward came,
 One was called Mary, the other one Jane.
- 19 Cousin Harvey, Cousin Asher and John,
 Like other old folks are jogging along;
 Each has a daughter to fill up their joys,
 With plenty of sunshine and plenty of noise.
- 20 Sophia had two little boys come into the home,
 One was taken away, the Savior said "come."
 Jennie is married, her home one of cheer,
 No trouble or sorrow is said to come near.

- 21 William is single and so is dear Mary,
 That's nothing to them as they both keep so cheery.
 Harvey and John now travel alone,
 Their companions have gone to the heavenly one.
- 22 And now, in our jingle we'll take a step back,
 And speak of a sister, one Sylvia Cudback;
 With Peter Bogart, her husband, she became a Wolverine,
 Her home one of comfort as might have been seen.
- 23 The children of this flock were counted as seven,
 And one, little Rachel, has long been in heaven;
 Katie, Roxana, Addie, Delia and John,
 With another called Peter, are jogging along.
- 24 These all are now married and settled in life,
 Some have a husband, and some have a wife;
 All have had children, and some of them grand,
 Some own city lots and some tracts of land.
- 25 All are Wolverines, excepting the one,
 Who in naming the children was always called John;
 He's now called a Rustler and lives in the West;
 On the plains of Dakota and doing his best.

- 26 Peter, Katie and Delia each have a son,
Two girls and a boy each have Roxie and John;
Addie, two daughters, both young and so sweet,
You'd say so yourself if you could them meet.
- 27 We'll now speak of Lydia, one of the fold,
Who married Socrates, as we have been told;
Griewold his surname, York State their home,
Until to another they concluded to come.
- 28 They became Wolverines with all of their flock,
Went into farming and raising of stock;
Twelve children were born and seven have grown
To manhood and womanhood as you have all known.
- 29 Of these now are living if you have kept track,
Mary, Sylvia, George, Eber and another, Audabaek.
Mary and George are near the old home,
Their travels are ended, no more do they roam.
- 30 Mary has one child, and George has two,
And they brought them up just as other folks do.
In the Centennial State does Audabaek stay,
Three children were born to him, so they all say.

- 31 But he travels alone, his companion is dead,
 He mourns for her truly, so all of them said.
 Eber, the brother, lives in Alabama,
 In his youth he fought bravely for our Uncle Sam.
- 32 He and his dear wife three children have had,
 All of them good and none of them bad;
 Two sweet ones, two dear ones, have been laid to rest;
 He who took them away surely knows best.
- 33 We'll now speak of Sylvia, a sister we know,
 She's in the world still and we're glad of it too;
 Six children she's had, five girls and one boy,
 Five only remain to add to her joy.
- 34 Her home is a farm, cozy and nice,
 Her husband, a soldier, by name Henry Price;
 One daughter is with them to help and to cheer,
 By both of her parents she's held very dear.
- 35 And now, dear sisters, dear cousins and aunts,
 If you want any more just give us a chance;
 If you meet a Cudaback in any strange place,
 Just bid him Godspeed, right out to his face.

- 36 And when all of us meet in the "Sweet-Bye and Bye,"
 "We'll then know the 'wherefore', we all will know why
 Grouble and hardship, sorrow and care,
 Were given to people as burdens to bear.
- 37 "There's a land far away, 'mid the stars we are told,
 Where they know not the sorrows of time,
 Where the pure waters wander through valleys of gold
 And life is a treasure sublime.
 'Tis the land of our God, 'tis the home of the soul,
 Where the ages of splendor eternally roll,
 Where the way-weary traveler reaches his goal,
 On the evergreen Mountains of Life."

79 East Church Street:

A Portion of Andaback History in Prose.

The ancestor of the Andaback race in America, at least that-portion of which I am writing, was Jaegues (Jacob) Candeebe, (origin spelling) who was born about the year 1666 in Candeebe, a town near the mouth of the River Seine, in Normandy, the Northwest part of France. His people were merchants of considerable wealth. The family were zealous protestants and suffered persecution for their faith.

Jacob Candeebe and Peter Jussars in company with other Huguenots fled to Holland, thence, after a time to Engla.

where Candebee expected to meet two sisters who were to have left France soon after the brothers. It is supposed that Peter Gumar was betrothed to one of these sisters. As the search was in vain they are supposed to have suffered martyrdom.

The two young men then sailed for America, landing in Maryland without either friends or money. They soon after went to New York where Candebee obtained employment of Benjamin Provost; a merchant residing alternately at Kingston and New York City, engaged in trading and in dealing in furs &c.

About 1690 Candebee, Gumar and the Swartwout-brothers explored and settled in Minisink or Meckheekameek Valley, in what is now known as Orange County, New York.

In 1695 Candebee returned to New York, and on October 21st of that year was married to Margaret Provost; daughter of his old employer, in the Dutch Reformed Church of that city.

Among their ten children, was one, a son James, who resided upon land received from his father, in Sussex County, New Jersey, not far from Orange County, New York.

James Candebee also had a son James, who lived and died in the above County in New Jersey. This second James Candebee had six children, three daughters who remained in New Jersey, and three sons, John, James and Richard, who moved to Niagara County, New York.

John S. Cudaback was the grandfather of the writer's husband, George B. Griswold, and moved from Sussex County, New Jersey, to Niagara County, New York in 1816. He had four children who lived to have descendants, two sons and two daughters. The sons and most of their descendants remained in Niagara County, New York. The two daughters, with their families, emigrated to Benawee County, Michigan, at an early day, where many of their descendants still remain.

Mrs. Sylvia Cudaback Bogart and husband are buried in Adrian Township, and Mrs. Lydia Cudaback Griswold husband and son William lie in the East-Rome cemetery. All of Mrs. Bogart's children and grandchildren, except the family of her son, John, are in Benawee County, Michigan, and Toledo, Ohio. Two of Mrs. Griswold's children, George and Mrs. Mary Barber are in Benawee Co. Michigan. One daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Price is in Pennsylvania, the son, Eben is in Alabama and Cudaback claims Colorado as his home. Four of Mrs. Griswold's sons, Archibald, Eben, Cudaback and George were soldiers in the Civil War, the only one wounded being George, who lost his right arm at War.

It is thought that a large portion of the Cudaback family are farmers by occupation, and all, so far as known are occupying honorable positions in the world. That they may all meet in an unbroken family circle in the Better Country is the wish of the writer, Mrs. Phoebe M. Griswold.

The City of Caudebec is situated on the Seine.

The valley of the Seine through Normandy is one of the most beautiful in France. It is a great basin of fertility, every where green, and the air is fresh and healthy.

From the beginning of the 12th century Caudebec was the capital.

It is thought that the name Caudebec is of Norse or Celtic origin, coined by the Normans. The Celtic name was Kaldr-Kalt-Kold (Cold) and Bekte, meaning a rivulet, brook-Kalt-bekte, (Caudebec meaning Cold brook).

In the 10th and 11th centuries Norsemen from Norway colonized northern France.

In the 12th century Caudebec was a large commercial city, as the Seine was at that time navigable for sea going vessels. In the 17th century it began to decline as the tide has gradually widened and shallowed the harbor and completely changed the river bed. In the 16th and 17th centuries fairs were established, as the country was favorable to stock raising. Many glass vessels were made at Caudebec, and the manufacture of these articles was at one time one of the chief occupations of the town. It was at that time one of the chief centers of the glass trade in France.

The Caudebec coat of arms was granted by Henry VIII Jan. 28, 1528. It is a shield, sky blue in color with three fish (salmon), painted in silver across its face.

In 1562 there was a conflict between the Huguenots (Protestants) and Catholics. Peace was brought about by the "edict of Nantes (a city further south) proclaiming religious liberty to all. This edict was afterward revoked by Louis XIV in 1685.

Terrible troubles followed. Near 100,000 persons, mostly of the industrial and manufacturing classes, fled from France.

In 1649 about one fourth of the town was destroyed by fire, and in eighteen months more than one third of the population had died of epidemic diseases.

Now Candee is a beautiful summer resort with most improved hotels. The population is probably about 2500.

Many of the houses date back to the 15th century.

There still remain some old wooden galleries suspended over the rivers and the streets, and today in Candee one breathes the air of the middle ages.

Coligny and the Huguenots.

BY REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

O F Admiral Coligny history declares that "in all the qualities of mind and character that constitute true human greatness he was without a peer."

An intellectual giant, clean of life, tender hearted as a little child, and in every crisis of life as brave as a lion, Coligny was one of the world's most remarkable men.

This great and good man may be termed the "Father of the Huguenots"—the body of men who have written their names large in the history of our country.

When, in 1685, old Louis XIV revoked the edict of Nantes, he did the worst possible thing for his country. The revocation dealt France the blow from which it has never recovered, while at the same time it proved to be a great blessing to England, Holland and later on to the United States of America.

It is said that the penstroke by which Louis effectuated the revocation of the edict cost him, practically at once, a million of his most subjects.

The fleeing Frenchmen went largely to England and Holland.

In the struggle between William III and James II (whose cause Louis so ardently espoused), it was a Huguenot, Schonberg, that turned the tide against James and France.

In the dramatic struggle between France and England for the possession of this great North American continent, it was the Huguenot influence that tipped the scales in favor of the Briton. In the mighty battle for the grandest prize that a nation ever struggled for France would unquestionably have won the day had she had the assistance of the million or more brave men that were driven away from her shores by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

Assisted by Huguenot genius and valor, the English won out in the great fight, and the children of the men who helped to beat down the French power in America were on hand to assist in the establishment and expansion of the glorious Republic.

From his place in the British Parliament William Pitt said:

"I have read Thucydides and have studied and admired the master statesmen of the world, but I must declare that for solidity, force, sagacity and wisdom of conclusion under difficult circumstances no nation or body of men stands in advance of the General Congress of Philadelphia. All attempts to impose despotism upon such men will be vain. We shall be forced ultimately to retract. Let us retract while we can, not when we must."

Of the body thus complimented in such glowing terms by the illustrious Pitt, the Huguenots may be said to have been the inspiring spirits. Of the Philadelphia Congress a Huguenot was the first president. Of its seven presidents three were Huguenots—Laurens, Jay and Boudinot.

In our entire history there are no grander names than those of Henry Laurens, John Jay, Albert Gallatin and Alexander Hamilton. Hamilton was not a full-blooded Huguenot, but it was from the breast of a full-blooded Huguenot mother that he drew his life.

It was a Huguenot who built and gave to Boston and to the nation the "Cradle of Liberty"—Faneuil Hall.

It was a Huguenot who drew up the terms of the surrender of Yorktown—John Laurens, the son of the first president of the Colonial Congress.

It was a Huguenot who gave us Bowdoin College, a Huguenot who built Vassar College, a Huguenot who founded the celebrated Roberts College on the banks of the Bosphorus.

The Bayards of Delaware, the Durands, the Bethunes, the De Laureys, the Edwardses, the Vincents, the Garfields, are all of Huguenot blood.

In his article entitled "The Distribution of Ability in America," Lodge says, "I believe that in proportion to their numbers the Huguenots produced and gave to the American Republic more men of ability than any other race."

Yes, it was a bad day for France when old King Louis signed that edict of Revocation, but a glorious day it was for the rest of the world—especially for the United States of America!

Geo. Abraham Griswold, aged 91, an honored guest of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity and one of the speakers at the alumni luncheon Thursday in the Adelbert gymnasium and the oldest living alumnus of Western Reserve university, is a conspicuous figure in the commencement week festivities, being Griswold lives in Kirtland, Trumbull-co. On his arrival Wednesday he was taken in charge by the fraternity, but expressed a preference in favor of sleeping in the college dormitory, saying he wished to be reminded as much as possible of old days. His wish was granted with enthusiasm.

Western Reserve, then located at Hudson, was founded in 1826, and graduated its first class in 1840. Griswold was present at that commencement, and entered the college the next year. When he was graduated, in 1835, the class numbered seven. The class of 1905 numbers 154.

Every other alumnus present Thursday found old classmates to fraternize with. Griswold alone found none. He scarcely found any one whom he knew, and would have had a lonesome time had not Sherman After seen to it that he was made much of. Griswold talked entertainingly of the difference between the Western Reserve of his day, with its one building, and the university of the present, with its dozen structures.

As speeches at the alumni luncheon were made by graduates of decades ending in 5, Griswold, class of '35, was eligible without the making of an exception in his favor. He was born in October, 1814, and the accompanying photograph was taken two years ago on his 89th birthday anniversary.

Grismold Genealogy

In studying the genealogy of the Grismold family I have found two distinct branches in the United States, both of English extraction. The older branch settled in and around Saybrook and Lyme, Connecticut about 1639. They were very influential families, descendants of the old English gentry. Many of them were magistrates, judges, Governors and members of Congress during the early part of the Republic, and their descendants today occupy influential positions in many portions of the country.

The other branch of the Grismold family is a more recent importation from England, coming to this country after the Revolutionary war and before the war of 1812. They also settled in New England, (mostly Vermont) and at an early date scattered through different portions of the West.

I have been unable so far to ascertain to which branch my husband, George B. Grismold, belongs. I have corresponded with a good many of the name, and as I am unable to connect him with either will secure all the history that I can pertaining to both branches. For the present I will consider the Lyme, Connecticut-branch.

Lyme is situated at the mouth of the Connecticut-River. At one time it was considered a suburb of Saybrook and covers seven or eight miles of territory. Saybrook was the seat of the first Yale College, the institution afterward being moved to New Haven. This vicinity was always the center of great literary culture. Lyme has produced more lawyers, judges, Senators and Governors than any other town of its size in the world, its latest and grandest achievement being a Chief Justice (Waite) of the United States Supreme Court.

The first ancestor of the Lyme, Connecticut branch of the Griswold family of whom I have been able to learn was Rev. Marshall Griswold of Hothull, Warwick County, England. (now Kenilworth) A descendant of this branch of this branch of the family has kindly sent me a copy of the Griswold coat of arms. He died in 1846 unmarried. The coat of arms is a heraldic shield and three fox hounds represented, beneath which are Latin words which translated into English read

"Lying myself I despise creeping things."

At the death of Sir Humphrey Griswold, Malvern Hall passed to his brother John who died without issue in 1760. The male line being extinct it then went to their sister Mrs. Mary Lewis, and eventually passed out of the possession of the Griswold family. Matthew, Michael and Edward Griswold, brothers and sons of George, (descendants of Rev. Marshall) came to this country came to this country about the year 1639 and settled at or near Windsor, Connecticut. Edward finally located at Clinton and ^{Matthew} at Lyme. Their descendants married into some of the best families in the state and indeed in the United States. Two were Governors of the state and many occupied high positions and do now. Many of the descendants are found in that vicinity at the present time 1900. Many are also found in different parts of the West. By the side of the Cotton Mather residence stands the oldest house in Lyme, in which are found many ancient belongings of the Griswold family and other celebrated families. Between the front windows stands an elegant round table which descended from Governor Matthew and Ursula Wolcott Griswold.

Black Hall is a drive of three miles from what is known as "The Street," I presume the principal thoroughfare of the town of Lyme. Lyme embraces a number of small villages scattered over its wide territory and the intervening drives are exceptionally attractive. Black Hall, the seat of the Griswolds is a cluster of half a dozen houses in the midst of a thick grove of trees, on the fine segment of land which slopes into Long Island Sound so far that in winter the sun ^{rise} and sets over the water. This large property was a fief or feudal grant to the first Matthew Griswold in 1645. He built a log house - the first house in Lyme - upon the site of the mansion which you see at the end of the private entrance, and dug a well, which is still in existence. He sent a negro ^{slave} to occupy the premises, as the Indians were too hostile for him to venture to remove his family so far from the fort at Daybrook. Tradition says that the log house was called the "black hall," which is supposed to have been the origin of the pleasant-sounding name which the place now bears.

The old gubernatorial mansion of Gov.

Roger Griswold commands a magnificent view of the Sound and its shipping. It is a well-preserved specimen of antiquity and one of those dwellings, the geography of which cannot be read upon the face of it. The rooms seem numberless and vary in size and shape until the explorer is hopelessly confused. It is full of suggestion for Gov. Roger Griswold was one of our country's ablest statesmen. He was called at the age of 32, from a valuable law practice into the Council of the nation, and was pronounced one of the most finished scholars in Congress, where he served ten years, during a part of the administration of Washington, the whole of that of Adams and a portion of that of Jefferson. He was nominated Secretary of State in 1801, but saw fit to decline. He was subsequently appointed Judge of the Supreme Court, elected Lieut. Gov. and finally Gov. of Conn., in which office he died in 1812. He sleeps in the Griswold graveyard, and his tomb, rising against a background of green, may be seen as you cross Black Hall River. He was the son of Gov. Matthew Griswold, who was conspicuous for the energy of his counsel and active measures during the Revolution. Gov. Matthew Griswold resided in Black Hall. He had eight beautiful sisters who were fond of out-door sports, especially horseback riding. Phebe married Rev. Jonathan Parsons another sister married Judge Hilhouse whose descendants are among the prominent families of New Haven. Chief Justice Ebenezer Lane of Ohio was a grandson of Gov. Matthew Griswold, and Judge William Lane was a grandson of Gov. Roger Griswold. Gen. Joseph G. Perkins of the civil war and Col. John Griswold who fell at Antietam were grandsons of Gov. Roger Griswold. Rev. George Griswold, pastor of the East Lyme Congregational Church for 36 years and Rev. Sylvanus Griswold of Feeding Hills, Conn. were of the same family. Also Nathaniel Lynde Griswold and George Griswold the great-East India importers of New York City; the wife of Frederic Frelinghuysen; the wife of Senator Lannan; the wife of Senator Foster; the wife of John Lyon

Gardner of Gardner's Island; the wife of President Tyler; Chief Justice S. J. Hosmer and Elenora wife of Virginia Cenci, whose residence was the ancient Cenci palace in Italy. Prince Cenci was Grand Chamberlain to the King of Italy. He was Prince of Vicovaro and was a descendant of the family of Beatrice Cenci.

A Historical Courtesy.—Name of sender refused, all authorities given—George Griswold, aged about sixty-seven years, testified as followeth: That in his youthful years he lived with his father in England in a town called Billingsworth in Warricksbire. He did several times since hear his father, Edward Griswold, say that the home they then lived in and lands belonging thereto was his brothers, Mathew Griswold, and have lately seen and read a letter under the hand of Thomas Griswold, of Killingsworth, above deceased, directed to his brother, Mathew Griswold, aforesaid, wherein the said Thomas Griswold intimated that he did then live in the above said home belonging to his said brother, Mathew Griswold, aforesaid.

May 9, 1700.
George Griswold appeared before me in Hartford, and made oath to ye above testimony, Joseph Curtis, Assist.

James (3) Avery, eldest son of James (2) and wife, Deborah Sterling, married Mary Griswold, daughter of Capt. John Griswold and wife, Mary (Beamis) Griswold, 1696.

Mary Beamis and her sister Rebecca were baptized March 26, 1671, first church records, New London.

In package marked years 1716-1722, in New London Probate Office, may be found the inventory of estate of Capt. John Griswold, also his will, drawn up and signed June 6, 1713, in which will he mentions wife Bathsheba, sons Samuel, Joseph, Benjamin, Daniel and Walter, and daughters Dorothy, Martha, Mary Avery, Margaret Chapman, Hannah Crane, Lucy Ball.

Will recorded August 13, 1717, page 18, Journal 2, Probate Office, New London.

Mr. John D. Henderson of Joliet, Ill., wrote me that ^{he said} he was a Griswold descendant. He said there was a Griswold family living Herkimer, N.Y. when the village was attacked by Indians, during the French and Indian war. They with many others became prisoners and were taken to Canada in birch bark canoes, landed at Toronto. His name was Benjamin Griswold.

Some time after the Revolutionary war one of the Griswold brothers (spoken of on page 96) returned to England to draw money from the bank of England, and as he was never heard the vessel is supposed to have been lost, and for all that is known to the contrary, the money is still in the bank or perhaps the bottom of the sea. The family name is not an uncommon one either in this country or in England.

History speaks of one Edward Griswold, a wealthy American Colonist, who loaned money to Aaron Burr to enable him to return to the United States from Paris.

The grandfather of my husband, George B. Griswold, was a shoemaker in Rutland, Vermont. His name was Griswold. His wife's name was Mary. Her body lies in the Cold Spring Cemetery, Lockport, N. Y. Gerattee Griswold my husband's father was born Feb. 2, 1811 in Rutland, Vermont. When young he moved with his people to Niagara Co. N. Y. where he made his home for a number of years. He lived for a time with a family by the name of Van Horn, in whose store he clerked. Van Horn and Church kept a general merchandise store in Olcott, N. Y. There father Griswold made the acquaintance of his wife Lydia A. Cudaback. They were married in All the children except one were born in Olcott, N. Y. Mother Griswold inherited a

 My husband, Geo. B. Griswold was about 7 years of age at the time of the removal, which he remembers well. Here the children grew up together and here, in Adrian, my husband and his three brothers enlisted as soldiers in the Civil war. The remaining years of father and mother Griswold were spent in this vicinity, though not always on the same farm. Father Griswold
